Heart Body Soul, 2003
acrylic on wood
6 feet 19 inches

Eyes, the window to the soul, two doorways
Into the mind, look to the unknown
Into secrets we try to hide
Deep drowning pools of sorrow
Magic mirrors reflecting our dreams
Look into my eyes, unravel my soul
I am not only what I seem Sinful deceit, heaven upon me
The cross of praise, my heart saintlessly betrays
For love is a questing spirit
To whom I am enslaved, clenching my heart Locked behind barbed wire gates, lies the pain.
