Lately, I've created pieces that show those aspects of life that can forever torment the human soul. All Personalities are Non-Refundable is about how people focus on wealth, status and looks. However, when you're dead, money won't be worth squat and your looks will be digested by worms. The material items you pined for can't be used in exchange for anything then. People need to concentrate on creating a legacy that's worth something—a personality worth remembering.
