Lamenting For The Hearts, 2003
oil on canvas
21 x 24 inches

The hearts that I have lost along my life in my family bring out deep dull colors of lament. Symbolically, it demonstrates all the love and remembrance and how much I cherish their presence in my life. Through drawn-out and outlined memories profoundly engraved in each step of my life, my love will forever remind me how life is short, fragile and should be handled like a jewel. My necklace of memory and loss.
